Alianza Unidos World Action (AUWA) demands that local governments and gig companies establish support hubs for food delivery workers and ride-share drivers.

Food delivery workers and ride-share drivers carry out their work in the streets, generally in uninterrupted shifts for many hours, without a fixed workspace, regardless of the weather conditions. Meanwhile, gig companies and their executives amass billions on the backs of these workers and continually refuse to abide by basic labor protections or make minimal investment to ensure their workers' basic needs are met while on the job.

Alianza Unidos World Action (AUWA) demands that local governments and gig companies establish Support Hubs in all the cities where their platform is operational. The goal is to have these Support Hubs located no more than one mile from each other - where food delivery workers and ride-share drivers can stop to rest, cool off, drink water, use the restroom, charge their cell phones, and have access to basic mechanical equipment for emergency vehicle repair services.

To demonstrate the viability of our demand, on December 15th and 16th, AUWA will establish Support Hubs for food delivery workers and ride-share drivers in different parts of the world.

These Support Hubs will include the following, and more:

1. Restrooms
2. Repair services for bicycles and vehicles
3. Phone charging stations
4. Hand sanitizer, masks, plexiglass partitions
5. Refreshments (coffee, water, protein bars)
6. Trainings
 - a. First Aid and Know Your Rights
 - b. Self Defense
7. Wellness equipment (massage chairs)
8. Materials that raise awareness of workers being persecuted for organizing and demand better worker conditions

AUWA invites workers to join their closest Support Hub to strengthen our fight for our labor rights!
